Cervical Cancer is the leading cause of cancer deaths in Peru among women aged 15 to 44 who live in low resource areas, including the Peruvian Amazon. Although preventive screening is inexpensive and available through the Ministry of Health, the majority of women have never been screened. Of the women who are screened and found to have cervical dysplasia or cervical cancer, many never receive treatment and succumb to this disease that is highly treatable in its earliest stages.

Read More...